Twilight Zone Day

May 11

May 11 is Twilight Zone Day, an unofficial holiday that honors and celebrates the Twilight Zone, an iconic and thrilling television show.

Nothing Is as It Seems~ Most Watched TV Show

The show made its debut in the United States in October 1959, to immediate critical acclaim, though it took a few years for it to gain popular success. Today, the Twilight Zone is considered to be one of the best and one of the most watched TV shows of all times.

No one knows who created this holiday or why they chose May 11 to honor this creepy, but fun holiday.

How to Celebrate?

Do a Twilight Zone marathon. It is also Eat What You Want Day, so get all the fun food you can eat, and park yourself in front of the TV and spend the day watching episodes of the Twilight Zone back to back.

Gather your friends and have a Twilight Zone themed party.

Fancy yourself as a sci-fi writer? Why not spend the day writing some Twilight Zone inspired fan fiction?

Did You Know?

...that Rod Serling was not the first choice for the narrator? Orson Welles was initially approached by Serling to play the role, but wasn't able to get him.

Reiki is a Japanese technique for stress reduction and relaxation that also promotes healing. It is administered by "laying on hands" and is based on the idea that an unseen "life force energy" flows through us and is what causes us to be alive. If one's "life force energy" is low, then we are more likely to get sick or feel stress, and if it is high, we are more capable of being happy and healthy.

Fun Holiday - Chocolate Chip Day

May 15 is Chocolate Chip Day, a day to celebrate the tiny morsels of chocolate that make any dessert even better. WE WILL BE SERVING CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES--ALL WEEK LONG. May 12th through the 19th!

In the United States, the unofficial holiday is also known as National Chocolate Chip Day.

An Accidental Invention

Also sometimes called chocolate morsels, rumor has it that chocolate chips were invented by Ruth Wakefield at the Toll House Inn in Whitman, Massachusetts. According to the legend, the creation of the chips was an accident out of chocolate powder while making cookies for guests, Ruth chopped up some chocolate and added it to the cookie dough. She found that the chocolate did not melt as she had expected, and the chocolate chip and the chocolate chip cookie was born.

Named After the Inn

After chocolate chip cookies became popular and successful, Nestle made an agreement with Ruth to add her chocolate chip cookie recipe to the packaging of their chocolate bars. Nestle's brand, Toll House Cookies, is named after Toll House Inn.

Today, chocolate chips are a popular ingredient in a baker's pantry and they are used extensively in cookies, cakes, ice creams and a variety of other desserts.

Did You Know?

that chocolate was once used as currency by the Aztecs? An avocado in this system was worth 3 cacao beans.

Benefits of Himalayan Salt Lamps

Himalayan salt lamps are growing in popularity and for good reason. These striking items that bring light to your surroundings and enhance home decor can also promote optimum physical and mental health. These lamps are made of actual rocks of Himalayan salt with a light bulb installed in the middle. Himalayan salt lamps can change the energy of your surroundings, clean the air and raise your spirits. They are derived from an area in Pakistan in the Himalayan Mountains, which is the main source of the famous pink salt. These Himalayan salt lamps are hygroscopic or attract water vapor. In addition to vapor, the lamps bring impurities toward the lamp and away from the surrounding air. This cleans the air and can improve respiration, help ease asthma and fight against pollutants. They can also bring more negative ions into the air, which can lighten the mood and be beneficial to overall health.

1. Improve Breathing

The negative ions in Himalayan salt lamps can help you breathe easier. Inside of our lungs are tiny hairs known as cilia which sweep away impurities. When these impurities are removed, we can breathe more easily. Many breathing problems are linked to tiny particles that are hard to remove with a broom or vacuum in our homes because in many cases, they are not even visible. Therefore, increasing the internal motion of the cilia can help screen out harmful particles that can make breathing difficult. Negative ions released by Himalayan salt lamps can help encourage the sweeping motion of these cilia.

2. Balance Energy

Our bodies are made up of atoms and molecules. An atom is often charged positive or negative, the charge makes it an ion. A negative ion has a negative charge and a positive ion has a positive charge. Negative ions tend to promote health more successfully than positive ions, which can carry pollutants and damage cells.

Common sources of negative ions include natural bodies of water, such as oceans, lakes and waterfalls and salt in its natural form. The negative charge of these lamps can help balance the body's pH and energy.

When the electrical charge is balanced, the body can heal itself.

3. Treat Asthma

Many people with stuffy noses or cloudy eyes use saline solution to clear up their problems. Salt has significant cleansing properties and in the case of Himalayan salt lamps, can purify the air and can help ease breathing problems and asthma.

There have been reports of significant improvement in asthma symptoms among people who have Himalayan salt lamps in their homes. As a result, there have even been Himalayan salt nasal sprays developed to deal with this condition.

The lamps work through removing impurities from the air, such as mildew, pet hair and other debris.

Reincarnation

Reincarnation is the philosophical or religious concept that the soul or spirit, after biological death, can begin a new life in a new body. This doctrine is a central tenet of the Hindu religion. The Buddhist concept of rebirth is also often referred to as reincarnation and is a belief that was held by such historic figures as Pythagoras, Plato, and Socrates.

Natural life is cyclical. Day fades into night and turns back into day as the sun rises. One season gradually gives way to the next. Over the passage of time, new generations are born and old ones die. The continuous succession of birth, death and rebirth permeates nature even though our own lives seem linear. So it's no surprise that some ancient observers looked at the seeming linearity of human existence and decided that life, like the natural world, might actually be more cyclical than linear. Multiple religions, philosophies and movements adopted this belief in cyclic life, or reincarnation.

Reincarnation, also called transmigration or metempsychosis, is the concept that the soul, or some aspect of the soul, is reborn into new lives. Depending on the religion or philosophy, the soul can appear incarnate in humans, animals or plants as it works its way toward an eventual escape from the cycle of birth, death and rebirth. Most religions that believe in reincarnation consider it the path to purity and salvation.

Reincarnation is widely accepted by the major Eastern religions -- most prominently Hinduism and Buddhism. It also has a history in ancient Greek philosophy. However, for people more familiar with the major monotheistic religions -- Christianity, Judaism and Islam -- the idea of reincarnation seems foreign and maybe even a little strange. That's because Christianity, Judaism and Islam conceive of time linearly. Life is simply a short step that determines the quality of an afterlife. For those who believe in only one life followed by an eternal afterlife, reincarnation is like an unwieldy marathon run by relay instead of a short, concise sprint.
